Office Hours: M 2:25-3:55; W 2:25-3:55 and 6:50-7:50; R 4:55-6:55

Phone Number: 972-881-5132

Email: cmelton@collin.edu

Class Information: ENGL 1301 – Composition I

Section Number: S71

Meeting Times: MW 5:30-6:45

Meeting Location: L202

Netiquette Expectations: I will frequently contact the class via email and/or via Canvas announcements, so make sure to check your Collin College email account and our Canvas page regularly (at least twice a week).

Class Resources:

Bullock, Richard, et al. The Little Seagull Handbook, 3rd ed. New York: Norton, 2017. ISBN 978-0393602630.

Additional readings to augment discussions, assignments, and student comprehension will be made accessible via Canvas, the library course reserves, or distributed in class.

Supplies: Be sure to bring a pen and paper and your commonplace book (see below) to every meeting; we will be writing in class every day. It's a good idea to bring your textbook to class each day too, but I'll remind you when it's critical to do so.

Attendance Policy: You are expected to be in attendance for every class meeting, on time, with text and materials, and prepared to participate. Workshops and discussions form the basis for most class sessions; therefore, everyone's presence is always required. More than four absences (excused or otherwise) will result in a 10-point deduction from your Participation grade followed by further 10-point deductions for each ensuing absence. Frequent tardiness will also result in deductions from your grade; every two tardy arrivals counts as one absence. Accruing more than ten absences results in a failing grade for the course. Exceptions are only made in unusual circumstances and only if the student has met with me early in the semester to discuss the situation.

Method of Evaluation:

Rhetorical Analysis	10%
Short Essays	10%
Position Paper	20%
Source-Based Paper	25%
Labs	10%
Quizzes, In-class Assignments, Homework	10%
Commonplace Book	5%
Participation	5%
Presentations	5%

Essays:

Grades for all major writing assignments and essays will be based upon how well the writing responds to the instructions for each individual prompt, but the following four categories will always be taken into consideration when assigning grades:

- 1.) Logical Consistency
- 2.) Grammatical correctness
- 3.) Soundness of Rhetorical decisions
- 4.) Adherence to the Prompt

Essays must be typed in 12-point Times New Roman font, double-spaced and stapled. Include your name, course and section numbers (ENGL 1301-S71), date due, a title (but no title page) and my name. All papers (unless otherwise noted) must follow MLA format. On the day papers are due, submit one hard copy to me in class. In addition, one electronic copy must be submitted electronically—to the email address listed above—no later than the start of class on the morning the essay is due; the electronic copy must be a Word document (.doc or .docx file).

Late work is typically not accepted unless arrangements have been made with me prior to the due date.

Grading Scale:

All essays will receive a letter grade using the following scale:

A = 95-100

A- = 90-94

B = 85-89

B- = 80-84

C = 75-79

C- = 70-74

NC = 0

*An NC on an essay requires the student to revise in order to receive credit for the assignment.

Participation

Your Participation grade in this course is determined by your level of engagement with the class and is based on your contributions to class discussions, involvement in group projects and discussions, and overall preparedness. Absences and tardiness will factor into your Participation grade, as outlined above in the Attendance Policy, but I'm factoring in more than simply your presence in class here. We will discuss what constitutes strong Participation in class early in the semester, but overall, keep up with the readings and assignments, stay engaged during class, and be willing to voice your ideas, questions, comments, etc., both in discussion and in writing.

Quizzes, in-class assignments and homework

In-class quizzes and assignments and homework will typically be graded with a numerical grade between 0 and 100. These assignments will be weighted equally and will be averaged together at the end of the term to determine the Quiz, In-Class Assignments, and Homework grade.

Commonplace Book

At the beginning of the semester, you will need to purchase a small notebook to use as your commonplace book. (I recommend a small Moleskine, which you can buy for less than $10 at most bookstores, but any small notebook will do.) During the first two weeks of class, I will provide detailed instructions for what you are to do with your commonplace book, but in general think of it as a place to record by hand your interactions with the texts we read, the ideas we explore, and the discussion you have with your classmates and with me both inside and outside of the classroom. You will be required to write in your commonplace book regularly (at least twice a week). Periodically throughout the semester, I will take up your commonplace book to make sure you're writing in it regularly.

Labs

The lab component is an integral part of this writing class. Over the course of the semester, you will need to complete a total of ten lab credits. Labs are not the same as regular daily coursework; they are, instead, designed as additional writing-focused activities that will help improve your writing throughout the term. During the semester, you will need to track and provide evidence of completing these lab requirements outside of class. These labs will be graded with a numerical grade between 0 and 100, and each will factor equally in determining your overall lab grade. Different lists of activities that count as lab credit will be distributed frequently during the course, each designed to complement the work we're doing in class at the time.

NOTE: During the first week or so of the semester we will discuss in depth the lab component for the class; this explanation is meant only as an introductory overview.

Requirements for Participation in Online Discussion Activities: Your lab and homework assignments may require you occasionally to contribute to online forums/discussion boards. For these assignments you will be graded primarily on the quality of your insights and your level of engagement with your peers.

Delivery Method of Feedback and/or Graded Material: All graded essays will feature both in-text suggestions/notes and a summary end note to give you feedback on your writing, suggestions for revisions, and questions for further thought.

Standards for Instructor Response and Availability: I encourage you to email me at any time with questions, concerns, and suggestions. Typically, I will respond within 24 hours (usually sooner). Likewise, I will do my best to return graded essays to you as quickly as possible, typically no more than two weeks after the assigned due date (again, usually sooner). Remember too that in addition to my regular office hours, I am always available via email and would be happy to set up a meeting with you to discuss grades and/or questions.

Course Calendar:

To achieve the student learning outcomes, we will work through four units over the course of the semester. The first unit, Listening for Meaning, will focus on learning how to read a text (be it written or visual), extract the meanings from it, and think about what rhetorical techniques the authors use to get their messages across, considering why those particular techniques are chosen and how effective they are. In addition, during this section we will work through how to properly format academic essays and craft strong paragraphs. This unit will culminate with the Rhetorical Analysis.

The second unit, Finding Your Voice, will focus on learning to use several different modes of writing to convey meaning and choosing the right modes to suit particular situations and audiences. You will build upon the rhetorical skills you learned in the first unit, moving from understanding meaning in texts to constructing meaning in your own texts. During this unit you will compose a series of Short Essays to practice these new rhetorical skills and to hone your ability to craft cohesive bits of short prose.

The third unit, Taking a Stance, will focus on developing your own position on a topic. You will hone the rhetorical skills covered in the first two units by taking a position on a topic and making the appropriate rhetorical choices to describe that position to a specific audience. We will concentrate on methods of crafting a clear message (like using reasons and evidence) and conventions of composition (like style and voice) to create a fully-developed academic essay. Unit three will culminate with the Position Paper.

The final unit, Entering the Conversation, will focus on augmenting your position from the third unit to craft a persuasive message that takes into account the voices and viewpoints of others, using written sources appropriately to strengthen your own position. We will spend a good deal of time learning how to gather sources and synthesize them, using conventional citation and documentation methods. Again, you will build upon the skills acquired in the first three units, constructing a rhetorically-sophisticated message tailored to its audience and situation while adhering to the conventions of academic writing. This unit will culminate with the Source-Based Paper.

The instructor reserves the right to amend this syllabus as necessary. Any changes will be communicated during class meetings and posted on our Canvas page.

Academic Dishonesty and Plagiarism Policy

Academic dishonesty includes cheating, fabricating or falsifying information or sources, improper collaboration, submitting the same paper for different classes without permission, and plagiarism. Plagiarism occurs when writers deliberately or unintentionally use another person's language, ideas, or materials and present them as their own without properly acknowledging and citing the source. The penalty for academic dishonesty will be assigned on a case-by-case basis determined by the severity of the offense, ranging from reworking the assignment for partial credit, receiving a zero on the assignment, and in extreme cases or for repeated offenses, failing the course.

Put simply, avoid any form of academic dishonesty.

Course Repeat Policy

Beginning Fall 2016, Texas residents attempting a course more than twice at Collin College are subject to regular tuition plus an additional $50 per semester credit hour. Please see the “Repeating Courses” section of the Registration Guide for more information.
