NEMO JESUNESAN JANANI JEGANATHAN

Swallowtail

BONNIE FRAZIER

I keep apologizing to God for the mistake I am in my mother's image found a swallowtail a tear in its wing would have been merciful to kill it I couldn't
I held it in the palm of my hand in my car, sweating within the metal underneath the Texas sun and watched it die

Pasadena

I remember Pasadena a lunch prepared Mike and I ate he inquired of my future plans for when I grew up we consumed sandwiches and soup well-crafted by you I wanted more but did not ask fondness lingered between us but not the intimacy customary on my mother's side the kind that would have allowed me to share that I ate like a goat or to divulge the reason for my visitation a temporary escape from a woman lost in a bottle of vodka, a mind fractured her parents considered snatching me from her alas, age got the best of them one more daughter, too much for old folks so I sat and waited but by the time you came already lost my mind tumors spreading to metastasis enough destruction to send myself to oblivion would my life have changed, if you had seen me hiding underneath the bed?
