

5-1-2009

Laws 1, Laws 2

Leslie Laws

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.collin.edu/forces>

Recommended Citation

Laws, Leslie (2009) "Laws 1, Laws 2," Forces: Vol. 2009 , Article 92.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.collin.edu/forces/vol2009/iss1/92>

This Photograph is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@Collin. It has been accepted for inclusion in Forces by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@Collin. For more information, please contact mtomlin@collin.edu.

STATUE STOOD WITH SILENCED LEGS

Greg McClure

statue stood with silenced legs never held by her or his (monolith monument obelisk) known by almost and loved by nearly everyone all (both here and there) paid their dues to statue still skyline stature merits awe pure as stone and strong as same masses (mad and merry) knelt dressed their front and turned their back (monument obelisk monolith) they sighed her wonder they breathed her praise one night nature ran his course and statue burned as by he passed to everyone's no she held her first joy through pain in natures sleep hammer by handle (swing and swung) forth and back and down and up (obelisk monolith monument) even stone falls stone by stone nature's course was sooner later and statue's silence broken dreamed (as seasons turned in timely fashion) known just once and loved once less

LAWS 1 Leslie Laws

LAWS 2 Leslie Laws

