Exordium: The Beginning

Cassandra Andrews

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.collin.edu/forces

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://digitalcommons.collin.edu/forces/vol2007/iss1/12

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@Collin. It has been accepted for inclusion in Forces by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@Collin. For more information, please contact mtomlin@collin.edu.
CASSANDRA ANDREWS

An eight by eleven measure
Of blank white space
This heavenly place
My sanctuary

Three arms in the center
One radius, one diameter
With silent pulse
And stagnant tick-tock

The mind lays dormant, quiet and dead
Then waves of thought flood the head
Like turbulent currents that ebb and flow Creating a noisy silence as they go

The mind explodes
The fingers bleed
Black droplets seep
Onto the blank white space

They stretch and bind Dots morph into line
They twist and turn in all manner of bow and box Reviled sincerity, epic truth, the epistemic paradox

In this checkered space
I am not always right, but I’m never wrong
For amidst the cacophony Forthwith honesty spawned

In this fragment of time
Here, with word and rhyme
Creativity gives birth to me

Kris Valis

pudgy piggies
don glossy pink bathing suits lured by the sun wallowing in the warmth of an early summer day

pulchritudinous piggies match rhinestones and flower vines ready for fun
rooting out the front of convertible carriages