UPTOWN TROLLEY Alberto Gutierrez

Hannah Smith

When we first saw dad again after four years, his brown hair was as short as when we last saw him, but not buzzed like it was when he was in prison.
Softly grayed with a mixture of grief and age,

In his glove compartment
The remnants of a recently chopped off ponytail Show and Tell that his hair had gotten long after prison the yellow-blond of it spoke hard work in the sun.
