Kill Yourself

Starlit D.S. Taie

30 minutes into traffic
 I say the words outloud
 Without realizing I said them
 They write themselves
 Like the people I pass
 Forgotten
 Just like my sister in my car
 Who turns to me
 And asks
 "Why'd you say that?"
 The only thing unwritten
 In her voice
 'What's wrong with you?'
 I usually leave it out
 I don't forget it
 It's ingrained deep enough
 That between the 7 am
 And 2 am in my planner
 It finds its own time
 Between color coded ink
 I see color coded images of reds
 Or smashed up silver metals
 Frayed browns and broken whites
 Little fragments settling
 Under weighted silence and dark
 Words repeat until the meaning's forgotten
 Yet I sit
 Obsessed with this movie
 I don't ever remember liking
