

Forces

Volume 2022

Article 56

4-12-2022

Run Towards the Sun

Katherine Huang

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.collin.edu/forces>

Recommended Citation

Huang, Katherine (2022) "Run Towards the Sun," Forces: Vol. 2022 , Article 56.
Available at: <https://digitalcommons.collin.edu/forces/vol2022/iss1/56>

This Photograph is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@Collin. It has been accepted for inclusion in Forces by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@Collin. For more information, please contact mtomlin@collin.edu.

Run Towards the Sun

Katherine Huang

Ode to Chocolate Chip Cookies

Tajha Bashton

You're as round as the moon at night.
Filling the air with a silent aroma of vanilla.
Turning the oven on and,
smelling you bake
takes me back to memories
I could never replace.
Spending the summers
with my dad.
His hand over mine stirring in one ingredient at a time.

Sneakily stealing chocolate chips
when he turns away.
Oh, chocolate chip cookie
how without you my life wouldn't ever be the same.
If we had never crossed paths
I wouldn't be living.
Brown, crispy, gooey and warm
when I bite into you
I am filled with warmth.
Memories and comfort
I can never replace.
Oh, how I love that I can always go there with just one taste.